

HNE Nursing and Midwifery Research Clinics 2020

Vision:

Conduct clinically based health research and translate evidence into high quality and effective health service delivery led by nurses and midwives within HNELHD.

PLEASE NOTE: All Research Clinics are available by appointment only.

Please contact Michelle Wyborn via email on HNELHD-NMRC@health.nsw.gov.au and she can schedule you an appointment at any of these clinics.

How do I progress my research ideas?

Following on from the District Nursing and Midwifery Research Workshops completed across the LHD in 2019, the Nursing and Midwifery Research Centre would like to continue to support nurses and midwives to develop their clinical issues and research ideas into achievable research projects.

A series of regular Research Clinics will be available in a variety of locations throughout this year. These are an excellent opportunity for you and your team to achieve your research goals with regular access to research support and advice from researchers, the Nursing and Midwifery Research Centre team (NMRC, HNELHD), University of Newcastle (UON) and University of New England (UNE) on how to progress your ideas and complete your research project.

Where are the Research Clinics being held?

Tamworth:

Who: Associate Professor Michelle Giles, NMRC, HNELHD
How: Face-to-face clinics or Skype
Where: Tamworth Education Centre
When: Monthly on a Tuesday between the hours of 8:30am to 5pm.

Newcastle:

Who: Professor Maralyn Foureur, Associate Professor Michelle Giles and Dr Se Ok Ohr, NMRC, HNELHD
How: Face-to-face clinics, via SCOPIA or ZOOM
Where: John Hunter Hospital campus
When: Fortnightly on a Thursday 9:30-4pm

Taree:

Who: Associate Professor Tony Smith, UON
How: Sessions entitled Engaging with Research Practice via the ZOOM
Where: at your desk
When: Monthly on a Monday between 13:05pm to 13:55pm.
If you wish to discuss your specific project, an appointment can be set up in the hour prior (12pm-1pm) with either Tony or one of the other researchers either face-to-face or via ZOOM.

Armidale:

Who: Associate Professor Leah East, Associate Professor, UNE and HNELHD
How: Face-to-face clinics or via ZOOM or SCOPIA.
Where: Level 1 at the Community Health Building, Armidale Hospital Campus
When: Fortnightly on a Wednesday between the hours of 10am- 3pm